

Praise for
Night Buddies, Impostors, and One Far-Out Flying Machine

“The second book in the Night Buddies Adventures Series has everything children love: quirky characters, adventure, a fantastic flying machine, and of course yummy food. And bright illustrations by Jessica Love. It is sure to be a winner!”
— Helen Ross, Australian children's author

“Author Sands Hetherington teaches children the importance of honesty, teamwork, caring, obeying the rules and the laws and how to be a good friend. Illustrations by Jessica Love to help bring the characters to life . . . What happens at the end will surprise you! What happens to the moles and the impostors will renew your faith in kindness . . . Crusted Crème Fro-Madge frozen yogurt, special party favors and more. This is one story that will definitely keep you guessing.”
— Fran Lewis, Reviewer

“Sands Heatherington has managed to keep the Night Buddies series fun, funny, and alive through John and Crosley. If you loved and laughed your way through Night Buddies and The Pineapple Cheesecake Scare, then you'll love this next book in the series.”
— Traci McDonald, Writing Blind

“It's a fun little adventure, and one that younger audiences will enjoy.”
— Alain Burrese

“The second I opened up the package with this book, my son scoffed it up. I immediately had him give it back, but in the process of me trying to read it for review, the book kept mysteriously disappearing. I would find him upside down, in a sleeping bag with a flashlight reading the book instead of going to sleep... The book is action packed and well thought out. My son and I definitely look forward to future books in the series. I give (and so does he) this book a 5 of 5 stars!”
— Athena Nagel, The Stuff of Success

"This is a cute children's book. It would make a wonderful Christmas gift for little ones."

— Mary Jackson, The Mary Reader

"Do you know what an imposter is? In this second book of a new series, John (no initial) Degraffenreidt, the young city kid who isn't ready for bed yet, and his friend Crosley, a red crocodile, fresh from having solved the case of the missing cheesecakes, take on a new all-night 'program,' according to their 'Night Buddies' contract, in which the two borrow a neat flying machine to investigate vandalism that's being done all over town by a red crocodile. Could it be Crosley, or is it an impostor? Night Buddies, Impostors, and One Far-Out Flying Machine is a fun and satisfying story for kids of all ages who like to read mysteries."

— Wayne S. Walker, Home School Book Review

"Jeeks! John Degraffenreidt and Crosley the red crocodile are back with a new adventure. In Night Buddies, Impostors, and One Far-Out Flying Machine, a case of evil Crosley impersonation leads the buddies across the night city, from underground hide-outs to aerial adventures. This book is packed with nonstop action, wacky inventions, allies and arch-rivals, rapid-fire dialogue, and the two best categories of kid-food: super-delicious and disgusting. Best of all is the pleasure of its language, fun to read and to read aloud. Any kid (even a grown-up one like me) will pick up its irresistible vocabulary, from Yerk! to Excelsior!"

— Lynne Barrett, award-winning author of Magpies and co-editor of Birth: A Literary Companion

"Sands Hetherington has done it again with the second Night Buddies book. This time Crosley and John find themselves on a not-so-normal program. Instead of solving some mystery like disappearing pineapple cheesecakes, they find themselves trying to find a red impostor. This wacky tale puts these two Night Buddies in some interesting situations any kid would dream of being in. The illustrations sprinkled throughout the book only help add to the imagination, and the unique verbiage helps to grow vocabulary. However, Crosley does warn you not to use some of the spellings in school as teachers may not like it. Can't wait to see what Crosley gets John into on the next program!"

— VS Grenier, award-winning author of Babysitting Sugarpaw and World of Ink Network Radio Host

“More than twice the length of its predecessor with three hundred and nineteen pages, this paperback book has a colorful drawing of a boy and a red crocodile flying in a blimp over a city at nighttime on the front jacket. With the book’s plethora of intentional misspellings to emphasize diction, there is a fun warning page at the beginning stating not to spell the same words at school or on a test. There is also a one-page explanation of uncommon words used by the Night Buddies and about a dozen black and white drawings by illustrator Love. The book is targeted as juvenile fiction with some slang but no profanity.”

— Conny Crisalli, Bookpleasures.com